What is an Economic Sector?

Economic sectors are large groups of the economy, grouped according to their place in the production chain, by their kind of work (product or service).

Primary Sector

The primary sector extracts natural materials and provides raw materials.

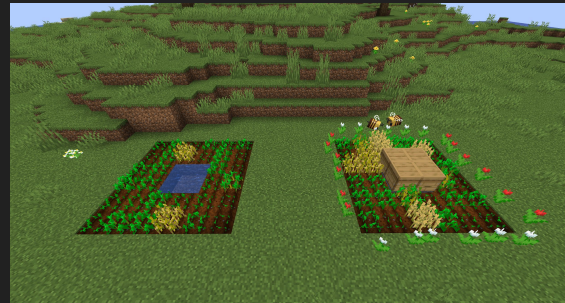

Examples of this type of work in Minecraft are mining, farming, chopping down trees and fishing. When you attack an animal to get meat, wool, leather, and other animal byproducts this is also considered as part of the primary sector.

products by harvesting crops.

Shepherd

Supplies animals for animal byproducts.

Secondary Sector

The secondary sector processes raw materials or semi-finished goods into more valuable products.

When you create products on your crafting table this is part of the secondary sector. When you cook meat, or create glass or other things by placing them in the furnace, this is an action that would be part of the secondary sector. Creating armor and weapons are also part of the secondary sector.

Tertiary Sector

The tertiary sector deals with commercial services. For example, buying and selling the products that were produced in the secondary sector. Examples of services in the tertiary sector are health care, entertainment, dining, banking, etc. Public services like policing, governing, public transportation and other things can be found in the tertiary sector also.

So, when you trade in minecraft this is part of the Tertiary sector.
